Patrons Message

The recent past has witnessed numerous natural disasters and communal strife that have led to a huge loss of precious lives. A hospital works as the medical emergency backbone of a city or town. This responsibility requires the hospitals system to have robust disaster and mass casualty preparedness, which is pivotal to reducing the vulnerability of communities in the eventuality of such occurrences.

Disasters and mass casualties can cause great confusion and chaos and overwhelm the hospitals' resources, staff and supply. The lack of a tangible plan to fall back upon in times of disaster can further compound the situation. Hospitals serve as the 24x7 medical response centres and therefore it is absolutely critical that healthcare personnel are trained thoroughly in preparedness and are capable of coping with such events in a calm and confident manner.

I am of the firm view that it is the responsibility of every health professional to be prepared in dealing with such medical emergencies and would urge all to make the effort in the interest of our nation and our people.

Apollo Hospitals has envisioned an innovative 2-day conference that will see International speakers from Israel and National Disaster Response Force empowering delegates with best practices and skills in the field of disaster and mass casualty management.

My best wishes to the organizing committee and all the delegates for a successful conference.

International Conference on Disaster & Mass Casualty Preparedness for Hospitals

A futuristic design, etched by foresight, backed by years of experience, with the potential to rethink, reinvent and rewrite the future of the nation's healthcare, that is - Apollo Hospitals. The corner stones of Apollo's legacy - our unwavering dedication of clinical excellence, our relentless pursuit of expertise and the ever tender Apollo empathy, continue to be the vital elements in our vision and plan for future.

Apollo hospitals with 30 years of expertise in dealing with a number of emergencies and mass casualty situations has set up the 'National Network of Emergency Services' to provide emergency care of uniform quality standards across the country. Its 24-hour emergency and trauma care is geared to meet all medical and surgical emergencies, including poly trauma. The technological advancements have made the job of health professional to evolve continuously. In the past few years, several changes have been made in the methods of mass casualty management and the hospital preparedness for disasters.

Disaster preparedness and planning increasingly emphasizes building capacity of human, organizational and infrastructural sectors. The newest Apollo Speciality hospitals at Vanagaram with 300 beds and Apollo College of Nursing within the campus preparing up to Ph.D level nurses is on the front line with full strength to treat any emergencies and mass casualty situations. Successful disaster response and recovery is largely dependent on planning. By leveraging the strengths of our partners and sharing resources, we can create resilient hospitals. This conference is aimed at developing vital relationships and initiating plans to the next level at the International Conference on Disaster & Mass casualty preparedness for hospitals.
